What's more, spanning 100+ countries and dozens of languages means that with Moreover Technologies' SET, you can provide your audience not just "news," but finely targeted and demographically tuned content, right down to the individual user level.

Link to the Web's best social media

Along with news, the Toolkit also provides access to user-generated content with the latest posts from over 320,000-plus social media sources, including the Web's most influential bloggers. Run keyword searches across the posts and create custom blog feeds on any topic.

Your scope, your scale

The SET is inherently flexible, and will scale to your exact requirements. Whether it's providing complementary headline links, a customized search tool, a full-blown news portal or an entirely novel application—as the customer, you have complete control over the topics, volume, options and GUI integration.

Easy API access – no installs, start right away

Simple calls over the Web to Moreover Technologies' servers will return the news feeds in RSS format on the desired topics for integration into your portal or application. You can specify the topics through keywords and a variety of search filters. In addition, options to specify news content can be provided directly on the portal, so end-users of the service can choose and run individual searches for information.

Cost effective

Moreover Technologies links back to articles already on the Web, eliminating extra usage-based charges that you may encounter with a syndicated service. The result is a fixed, predictable cost structure that scales across your implementation.
